Bringing together two exceptional young Canadian talents

S ince they don’t live in close proximity and have busy travel schedules, the two young Ca-dian musicians usually stay in touch via social media the likes of Facebook and Twitter. “What brings them together is a shared passion for classical music – and similar career paths that started when they were young – so naturally they have lots of fun and play some great music together,” says Ragaigne. “They can “open their hearts and minds to experience as the place to be for inspiring cultural experiences.”

STRATFORD SUMMER MUSIC
With bells and drums

THE streets of Stratford, Ontario, will come alive with the sound of bells and drums this summer when two new attractions open roll into town: aerial drummers and a mobile carillon. While these free public performances may call for an introduction, words will likely be inappropriate to truly capture the emotion and excitement of these special performances. Equally, no amount of words can replicate the sounds of the Peace Tower carillon in Ottawa.

The idea started when the French composer César Franck, Robert Schuman and the genius of the work,” says Lisiecki.
“Performing doesn’t require adding the interpreter’s ideas as supplementary to your own emotions and ideas, but rather what you feel in the piece.”

“Compared to the great voice of the Peace Tower carillon, for example, the mobile carillon has 53 bells, while the Peace Tower carillon has 249.”

The carillon and Transe Express series are some of Canada’s finest carillon artists today. The Stratford Summer Music highlights are usually a topic close to the community’s heart and culture.
